Dear Rabbi Horowitz:

I am in receipt of your letter of February 21. There is no occasion for elaborating on the Beth Jacob movement. I am quite well acquainted with it.

I have spoken to Mr. Louis Marshall on the subject. There is no point in my giving you a letter to Mr. Marshall who knows about you and knows about the work. It is his own right to receive such visitors as he has time for, and I do not think that a letter from me would be of any real use. Mr. Marshall has always shown a great interest in Jewish education, and especially in education for girls, and there is no need to take up his time to establish in his mind what is already there. The matter of which you speak will come up before the next meeting of the Cultural Committee. The Beth Jacob Schools have a very warm advocate in the Committee in the person of Doctor Jung, and really no further urging is necessary. We are trying to do what we can.

Very sincerely yours,

CYRUS ADLER
